SIP water bottle cardstock label

SIP water bottle cardstock label

I like to leave out a bottle of water for my overnight guests in their room. It's so nice to have if you wake up thirsty and you don't want to wander through the house at night where you are a guest and you may not know your way around that much.

I made this cardstock label to go with my new Welcome tag with the WIFI code on it.

I used this cardstock and set my dial to Fabric. then I cut out 6 tags.

I sized the label to fit an 8 oz water bottle from Arrowhead. Once I added the label, I positioned the cut out word 'SIP' to be above the green part of the label.

For the easiest way to put this onto the water bottle, I found that inserting the tab loosely first worked the best. Then I slipped it onto the water bottle and pushed on the label to further insert the tab and tighten the circumference.

That's it. Looks better than the store label, right? And they go with the new Welcome tag I made too.

Oh and I had some help from my lovely assistant Freya for this photo shoot. She made sure the bottles were lined up correctly. Here she is doing her final inspection. It's hard to get good help these days, so you really have to appreciate it when you get someone good.
